Mrs. Leon Spooner Civil Defense Head

Mrs. Leon Spooner, who was recently appointed supervisor of Civil Air Defense in the Pahokee-Canal Point area to fill the vacancy left by Mrs. G. C. McLarty when she moved to Lake Worth, reports the public response to civil defense work in this section is slow.

"The people of this area do not seem to realize that the efficient workings of Civil Defense might some day be the means of saving their own lives and the lives of their loved ones in case of emergency," Mrs. Spooner said. "The majority when asked to assist in manning an observation post during an alert decline their services with an excuse that they are too busy to help," she added.

The new supervisor points out that Civil Defense has been established throughout our nation and is carefully planned and integrated to protect our nation as a whole, and as patriotic citizens we should feel it our duty and responsibility to help with a task so important.

Mrs. Leo Maxwell heads the Woman's Division of the local Civil Air Defense. Mrs. Edgar Wilder of Pahokee and Mrs. George H. (Duke) Tucker, Sr., of Canal Point have been named by Mrs. Spooner as Mrs. Maxwell's assistants.

Dick Parrish and Ralph Johnson, both of Pahokee, head the Men's Division of the C. A. D., but so far Mrs. Spooner has not been able to secure a representative from Canal Point to assist in the Men's Division. She is eager for the full cooperation of all citizens so the work may be done efficiently without becoming a burden to any one individual. This can easily be done if each citizen willingly gives a portion of his or her time when called upon, she asserted.

As Chairman of the Dental Advisory Committee to the State Department of Education, Dr. Thoburn has appointed Dr. Bryant S. Carroll of Jacksonville, who has long been interested in this matter and who originated the present movement, through the State Dental Society Public Education Committee, at the state dental convention held in Daytona Beach last April.

Here's Your Paper While We Vacation

By sheer newspaper publishing ingenuity and a little forethought, the publisher of The Everglades News sends you your regular weekly edition this week while he and the force take a much-needed and well-earned vacation. By a little hocus-pocus we offer herewith your regular edition of this great palladium of the family fireside.

Teachers Readyng School For Start

Although school doesn't start until Sept. 7 for the school children, the teachers are already back to work, with most of them reporting Monday at the schools throughout the County for preschool workshops, discussions of improved educational methods and general preparations for the opening.

After reporting at the local schools on Monday, the teachers spent the following four days of this week attending meetings in West Palm Beach. On Monday, Aug. 23, faculty meetings and other preschool activities will be resumed at the local schools and will continue until Sept. 3, with the exception of one day, Aug. 26, when all teachers will go to Fort Pierce to attend a district meeting of the Florida Educational Association.

Industrial Districts Important In State For Future Planning

WOODVILLE — In the current issue of the Florida Planning and Zoning Newsletter, Fred Blair, Jr. calls attention to the importance of setting aside industrial districts.

These districts are simply large areas of the communities' land that have been set aside strictly for industrial use. Such sections are zoned to permit no residence or business, and facilities are provided to meet modern industrial needs.

Communities that are farsighted enough to provide such areas and make it known have a district advantage in attracting new industry.

Good land and a good location are two of the principal requirements for setting up a satisfactory industrial district. The owners of property should have the courage and patience to wait until the right plants come, should see to it that the industries are willing to construct rightly and modern plants and that the companies have a sound prospect for the future.

The Florida Planning and Zoning Association, P. O. Box 206, Woodville, is prepared to cooperate with communities concerned with attracting new industry, large or small, Blair reports.

Harry F. Shalman, Shalman Seafoods, Fernandina Beach, was elected president of the Shrimp Association of America at the annual meeting of the organization held in Mexico City, Mexico. Mr. Shalman is also chairman of the board of the Southeastern Fisheries Association.

Cinematic Chatter

By Malcolm Millar

Hello everybody! Believe it or not, Jeff Donnell is a girl who was born in a boys' reformatory. The reason for this odd birthplace—it was at South Windham, Maine, on July 10th—was that her father happened to be superintendent of the institution. Now a talented young actress, Jeff's expert characterizations in a variety of roles has made her one of the busiest players in Hollywood. It was a good thing her parents gave her a two-sided name, for later the family moved to the Maryland Training School for Boys at Towson, and Jeff found many a playmate among the lads simply because of her male moniker. Her education, however, was gained in that town's public schools and also from her mother, who was a schoolteacher. Since it was her first ambition to become a stage director, her parents decided to train her along theatrical lines, and as a child she studied tap, ballet and tap dancing until she graduated from high school. The next step was up to Jeff, and she yearned to return to New England. So she went to Boston and enrolled at Leland Powers Dramatic School, and her all-inclusive course was not confined to stage direction. It took in all the phases of the theatre, and while she was learning about lighting and makeup and prompting, she also learned about acting. In fact, she went all-out for acting, registered at the Yale School of Drama and made her stage debut the following summer. In 1942 Jeff entered pictures and was a success from the start. She is divorced from William Anderson, a dialogue director. She has a son Michael, 12, and a daughter, Sarah Jane, six. See you at the movies—Mal.

Safety Conference In St. Pete Oct. 1, 2

TALLAHASSEE — The 1954 statewide Florida Highway Safety and Teen-Age Conference will be held in St. Petersburg, Oct. 1-2, Conference Secretary Roger Collar of the Florida Highway Patrol, announced here today.

The program will be patterned after the White House Conference which was called by President Eisenhower and held earlier this year in the nation's capital.

Speakers for both conferences will include local and nationally recognized safety authorities. The program is now in the process of being drawn.

Acting Governor Charley E. Johns and other members of the cabinet will be hosts to the two day meeting which will be in the Sorenson Hotel, Collar said.

Representatives of Labor, agriculture, business, women, public officials, public informational media, religious, fraternal service and veterans groups and youth will be among the delegates.

The St. Petersburg conference will be the sixth annual one of the highway safety group and the third one of the teenagers.

GROWERS INTERESTED IN AROMATIC TOBACCO

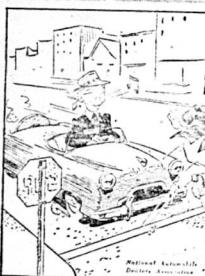

LAKE CITY — Interest in growing aromatic tobacco in Columbia County was expressed by a group of local farmers and County Agent Neal Dukes after a visit in South Carolina where this tobacco is growing successfully.

Aromatic tobacco, commonly referred to as Turkish tobacco, has been used with domestic tobacco for the past 30 years to obtain the blended cigarette so familiar to the American public. Dukes said it has been necessary to import these aromatic tobaccos from Turkey, Greece, Bulgaria and Soviet Russia.

In discussing this area as a possible site for growing aromatic tobacco, the growers pointed out the fact that more than 80 million pounds of aromatic tobacco are used every year in this country in making the popular American blends.

The opening of Sunshine Skyway connecting Pinellas and Manatee counties across lower Tampa Bay should have a tremendous impact on the development and tourist travel in this West Coast area.

Christian Science Group Of Canal Point

The importance of relying wholeheartedly on God, divine Mind, for guidance will be stressed at Christian Science services Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon entitled "Mind" will include the following passage from the King James Version of the Bible (Proverbs 3: 5, 6): "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths."

The practical availability of spiritual guidance will also be stressed in the following passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (254: 10-12): "When we wait patiently on God and seek Truth righteously, He directs our path."

The Golden Text is from Daniel (2:20, 21): "Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever: for wisdom and might are his: . . . he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding."

Alcoholic Program Explained By Johns

AVON PARK — Barton Johns, educational director of the Florida State Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program, points out that the object of this program is to work for control, treatment and prevention of alcoholism.

Plans are under way for the construction of a hospital for alcoholics at Avon Park. This will also serve as headquarters for the State Program officials.

The hospital will serve as a treatment center for out-patient clinics throughout the state.

The entire program is beamed toward the excessive or so-called problem drinker who has reached a point where he apparently is unable to help himself.

Patients will enter the rehabilitation program voluntarily and pay according to their ability. They must have one year's residence in the state to be eligible for care. The treatment center will offer an approximate three weeks of individual and group counseling, such as psychiatric, social, religious and A. A. in an attempt to aid each patient to bring his drinking problem under control.

Florida's average orange grower made a profit of $158 per acre during the 1953-54 season or $11 more than the return last year, according to figures of Florida Citrus Mutual statisticians.

Too Close Grazing May Damage Grass, Research Reveals

GAINESVILLE — You old timers remember what the guiding theory behind cutting and close grazing grass was? It was, keep it short and always mow the grass evenly between rotations. Now the U. S. Department of Agriculture has come up with something new on the subject of mowing and clipping pastures.

USDA personnel have found that if you remove too much of the grass' top growth by grazing or mowing it closely, the roots will stop growing until the tops recover. Taking off more than half of the foliage at a single cutting causes root growth to stop for a time after each clipping.

A single cutting that removed most of the foliage stopped root growth — usually within 24 hours — for periods ranging from 6 to 18 days and the roots didn't resume growth until after the top growth was well advanced. Repeated severe clippings, as in the system of rotation grazing, prevented root growth of all grasses for 25 to 45 days. The workers further report that the percentage of roots that stopped growing varied with the amount of top that was taken off.

With a single clipping of 50 percent of the foliage, 2 to 4 percent of the grass roots stopped growing for 14 days, but removing 90 percent of the foliage halted root growth completely for 17 days and 40 percent of the roots were still inactive at the conclusion of the 33-day experimental period. Again, the effects of such clippings repeated frequently, simulating continuous grazing, were much more severe.

But here is the important point — removing 40 percent or less of the foliage did not halt root growth. Clipping parts of bunch-grass plants stopped root growth for only those parts. This characteristic, the USDA points out, would seem to make "patchy" grazing by cattle a desirable habit.

The USDA believes the damage from repeated heavy clippings is significant in soil conservation and pasture management; reducing the top more than half upsets the functioning of the root system and the plant as a whole. Because of continuous suppression of aboveground growth the grass can't replenish its food reserves. So, the effects of root inactivity are lasting. The plant thus weakened, is less able to resist erosion and grazing as well as drought, cold and disease.

This is striking evidence for Florida cattlemen that close grazing or mowing during the growing season — especially in periods of stress or in the late fall — may be practiced at the expense of stand establishment and maintenance.
